LITERARY NOTES.

Great men are few, but when

The world demands great men,

Either with sword or pen,

It does not lack them;

Nor they the iron will;

That conquest can not kill,

For, crushed, they conquer still

All who attack them.

They triumph more and more,

And witness that before:

The warrior's reign is o'er,

For, though victorious,

And crowned with foils' applause,

Unless the sword he draws

Sustain a noble cause,

He is not glorious.

R. H. STODDARD.

The June number of the Atlantic Monthly opens with the second installment of Mr. William Henry Bishop's striking new serial, "The Golden Justice," and the number also contains portions of Henry James's very remarkable socialistic novel, "The Princess Casanoviana," and Charles Egbert Craddock's brilliant romance, "In the Clouds." Under the title of "A Roman Gentleman under the Empire," Miss Harriet W. Preston gave a charmingly life-like account of the younger Pliny, and of his times. The short story of this issue, "Valentine's Chance," by Lillie Chace Wyman, is excellent. Mr. Edward Stanwood contributes a paper on American history entitled "A Glimpse of 1786," and an important critical article on Honore de Balzac—the man and his books—is written by Mr. George Frederic Parsons of the New York Tribune. "James Crawford, and Howells" form the subject of an able piece of critical writing, and there is a brief criticism of Miss Anne Whitney's statue of Lief Erikson, by the architect Henry Van Brunt. This excellent number is concluded with some good poetry and the usual Contributors' Club and Books of the Month. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston.

The "Old Colony Series," is a group of carefully selected anonymous novels, largely of historical subjects, and aiming to hit the popular taste latterly so strongly manifested in bi-centennials, semi-quintennial, and the like. The first book of this set (appearing May 20th) bears the fascinating title of "Constance of Acadia," and has much to say of French Canada and of Boston, of the Chevalier La Tour and Governor Winthrop, in the picturesque old feudal era, Hawthorne and Whittier were deeply enamored with Acadia as a field for romance; and Longfellow found here a theme for one of his noblest works, in the great poem which he intended to have named "Celestine," or "Gabrielle," but finally entitled "Evangeline."—[Roberts Brothers, $1.50]

Houghton, Mifflin & Co. appear to have struck a brilliant idea for summer trade, in their "Riverside Paper Series," giving the best light literatures in handy volumes and clear type, at a very moderate price. There were thirteen volumes issued in 1885, including works by Howells, Bishop, Fawcett, Holmes, Aldrich, and other well-known authors; and the issues promised for 1886 are equal in number, and in merit. This year they begin in May, during which month will be issued Elizabeth Stuart Phelps' "Burglars in Paradise," Miriam Coles Harris' "A Perfect Adonis," and Horace E. Scudder's "Stories and Romances." "The Cruise of the Alabama," which appears in this series in June, is not (as has been generally reported) a mere reprint of the recent Century Magazine articles on that subject (which referred mainly to the battle with the Kearsarge), but contains a vivid record of the cruise of the privateer, written by one of its common sailors. Another May book is the Rev. F. W. Gunsaulus' "The Transfiguration of Christ." At about the same time comes "Mrs. S. M. B. Platt's 'In Primrose Time,' " "A New Irish Garland," which is a thin volume of verse; also, "Old Salem," a group of five descriptive articles about the mother-city of the Massachusetts Colony, by the late Eleanor Putnam (Mrs. Arlo Bates), with an introduction carefully prepared by Arlo Bates, the editor of the Boston Courier, and author of "A Wheel of Fire," etc. They are sold at 50cts each, and the subscription for the series of thirteen numbers is $6.50.

The usual number of interesting articles fills the May number of "The Decorator and Furnisher." Anna H. Warton continues her series of "Some Philadelphia Studies." This article is followed by "Our Public Monuments." The treatment of this last subject abounds with good sound sense. "Economic Furnishings" offers useful hints to those who desire to fit a home in reasonably good style for a modest sum. There are useful hints as to "The Best Way to move," followed by the true art of "Hanging Pictures," "Metal Work," "Work for Ladies," "A Philistine Artist," "Sanitary Home Furnishing," and "Work Reviews." Brief bits of thought, bearing upon various useful, and art subjects, complete the reading matter. The customary illustrations are included.

"The Dark City" [Doyle & Whittle, Boston, paper 50 cents,] refers to London. The author of the book, Leander Richardson, tells of scenes and sights outside the course of regular tourists. The descriptions are those of which other travelers have not written. A clear and concise style of composition renders the portrayal exceedingly entertaining. There is not only nothing dull in the book, but there is an ever-present sarcasm, or burlesque, mingled with no end of just representations of certain characteristics peculiarly representative to the people of Great Britain.

Persons who have never experienced English foibles and English good sense will be tempted to go and see for themselves, and those who have seen will delight in Mr. Richardson's way of putting them.

The book, which is in paper covers, deserves a more lasting binding. A perusal of "The Dark City" will be sufficient to cause the reader to hope for more world-pictures from the pen of the same author.

The National Provident Union.

You are cordially invited to attend the meeting to be held at Knights of Honor Hall on Saturday Evening, the 29th inst. at 8 o'clock sharp, for the purpose of forming Phil Kearney Council.

The meeting will be addressed by EDWARD O. BRADGON, President of the Union; J. L. KILGORE, Sec. of the Union; JOHN M. DAVIS, of Committee on Finance of the Union; ROBERT C. LIVINGSTONE Gov. Territory of New York, and others.

This will positively be the last meeting before organization. Come and hear what these gentlemen have to say whether you wish to join or not.

All are welcome.

The objects are:

A national organization for educational purposes; in knowledge of the government of the United States, its Constitution and rights of citizenship.

A provident fund for the benefit of the widows, orphans, and other dependents of its citizen members.

A fraternal union, in which to unite all persons of sound bodily health, of good moral character, who are socially acceptable, and between the ages of seventeen and fifty-five; to give moral and material aid to its citizen members and their dependents; encourage each other in business, assist each other in obtaining employment, educate its citizens socially, morally and intellectually, to inculcate a spirit of charity, by caring for one another, and practicing those virtues which constitute the noblest manhood.

Its government is vested in a national union, Provident States and Councils, with Legislative, Executive and Judicial branches, a transcript (as nearly as can be consistent with economy), of the Government of the United States.

Its provident bonds are of the denominations of $1,000 $2,000, $3,000, $4,000 and $5,000.

The provident tax (or assessments) on these Bonds are, for each $1,000 Bond,—from 20 cts to $1.00 graduated according to age.

The total expense of admission to this Council is

Application Fee . . . $1.50
Physical Examination 1.00
Provident Bond . . . 1.00
One Quarter's Dues . . . 1.50
Total . . . $5.00

And one Provident Tax, according to age and amount of Provident Bond

After this the only expenses are the quarterly dues ($1.50) and provident taxes which are levied (not upon each death), but only when there is not sufficient money in the hands of the Secretary of the Treasury to pay a provident bond. Upon the death of a citizen a report is made to each council, by the Secretary of the Union, giving the name, date, and cause of death, together with the name, number, and location of his council, etc.

A few figures taken from a recent publication are worthy of perusal:

Since 1864, sixty-five life insurance companies have ceased to exist, taking with them $101,430,235.00 and 256,158 broken promises. In twenty-seven years, forty-five companies collected $877,577,307.00, and paid out for death losses during the same period, only $213,326,566.00. Co-operative life insurance has existed for nearly two centuries in England where there are over 23,000 Co-operative Associations; one having existed nearly 200 years, five over 150 years, and sixty over 100 years. One association has 735,000, and five more than 100,000 members each.

In the United States, according to reports at a convention held in New York not long since, 234 societies had paid 21,460 claims, amounting to $31,775,510.00, and the report of the Insurance Commissioner of Mass., shows that during the year 1881, the co-operative societies in that State paid over $5,000,000.00 to the widows and orphans of members, at an expense of only 5 1/2 per cent, while the "old time" companies' expense for the same time, were 52 per cent.

There are many things about the N. P. U. which are radically different from any association of its kind and the closest investigation is invited and courted. Its educational features and forms of government are worthy of more than a superficial glance.
